

Weaving Creativity Into the Fabric of the Workplace

Creativity experts Robert and Rebecca Bluestone possess the rare gift of being consummate artists who also have the ability to articulate to any audience, in their own language, how creativity relates to their everyday lives and assures them success in the 21st Century. (It doesn't hurt that Robert is also very funny!) This dynamic multi-media presentation is designed for corporate audiences seeking to meet the challenges of the 21st century in a bold and innovative way. Every day people face obstacles at work and at home. Some of them can seem daunting. Corporate cutbacks, job losses, mergers, the economy, health issues, money problems – they can all be stressful. Your audience will learn how to find:

- The power of ENGAGEMENT that unlocks their personal and professional creative resources in a new and innovative way
- The CREATIVITY that naturally flows out of this state of ENGAGEMENT and allows them to see possibility where it seems there is no possibility
- The ACHIEVEMENT and SUCCESS that come from balancing creative and critical thinking and the ability to take an adverse situation and turn it to their advantage
- Inspiration on a daily basis in order to rejuvenate and relieve stress

Audience members will come away with a feeling of inspiration, renewal and the confidence to make creativity a part of the fabric of their everyday lives.

WHO BENEFITS: Any organization, corporation or business seeking to survive and thrive with a new set of tools to meet the challenges of the 21st century.

'Rebecca & Robert are eloquent speakers, willing to work in challenging situations with aplomb, and willing to engage in meaningful dialogue with community members, university students, healthcare professionals, university administrators and major program supporters. I cannot express my appreciation enough for what they shared with our community...we are a better community following their visit.'
